

Information and content, whether local or national, is a commodity. There should be no regulations or limits placed on companies which prevents them from developing and delivering the content their customers are asking for. XM has every right to meet their customers needs and stay competitive in their industry.